DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (If known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

Secluded on a beautifully maintained 200 acre farm, the "Portland Manor" house stands in a setting of extensive boxwood gardens, large holly trees and very old oaks. The property belonged to the Darnall family for 250 years when the house was finally sold in the 1950's by Mrs. Bennett Darnall.

There is, currently, a dispute concerning the location of the original "Portland Manor-house". The land was a 2,000 acre grant, surveyed by John Hammond for Charles Calvert, 3rd Lord Baltimore in 1662. 1090 acres of it were purchased in 1698 by Henry Darnall. There were several 17th and 18th century houses within the 2,000 acre area. One is now known as "Portland Place" (AA-41-N-a) and its earliest portion dates from about 1690. Another house, now destroyed, could also have made a claim. I can't imagine either of the main sections of the house as anything but middle 19th century or later.

The name has remained, however, with this house on Brooks-Woods Rd. The dates of the different sections are not known but there are several elements which indicate at least an 18th century dwelling on the site. The kitchen is the oldest remaining structure. It is one room with a loft above. The exterior is sheathed in short (2 foot long) hand-riven clapboards with beaded edges. The roof is very steep. The chimney has been rebuilt and a basement entrance dug beside it.

The principal section of the house has the traditional side-hall, double-parlor plan. It has two stories and is sheathed in beaded wood sidings. The two exterior, end chimneys have a brick pent or closet room between them. A tiny window is cut in the back wall.

The interior detailing is simple. The stair-hall is divided by a segmental arch. Both parlors have a chair-rail and cornice. The mantels are plain. The marble facing over the brick is probably a much later addition.

A long wing adjoins the main section on the east side. It is one room deep and has two entrances. The chimney is in the middle. This part of the house was probably built in the 1860's or 1870's. The interior moldings are completely plain and the hardware is characteristic of the type used after the Civil War. The roof of this section has a low pitch.

Another small two story addition continues the telescope arrangement of the house. An enclosed breezeway connects this section to the kitchen. The front and back of the house have full length porches.
